FOREWORD

We are living in a transformational time where new paradigms of knowledge, technology, networking and human relations are being formed. The big question in the mind of parents of persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities is how this is going to benefit their sons and daughters. Are they going to continue to live in the environment of discrimination and denial or will they be part of inclusive society with an opportunity to lead a life like rest of population. The answer lies in Parents' efforts at transforming their children, by enabling them to rediscover own potential and empowering them for social inclusion and a purposeful life. That's self-advocacy. It is not merely a training or a program but a movement, a way of life inculcated among the people with intellectual and development disabilities and in the society they live in..

The Self advocacy handbook is being published for this purpose. It will benefit all those who believe in Self Advocacy movement; the community, volunteers, mentors, family members. The self-advocates can use it to enhance their proficiency at decision making and even supporting others. The parents and self-advocates have long way to go and this handbook will act as compendium of success stories and a yardstick for self-evaluation. The parents can reinforce their commitment to empower their Self advocate in each step, by not sympathizing but by their patience and encouraging attitude.

Earlier Parivaar took the opportunity to provide support to persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities to recognize own potential and get counted in the society as Self advocates. But nothing comes easy in life and so is the transformation of persons with intellectual disability into Self advocates. Parivaar picked up the nuances of Self Advocacy from Inclusion International and was supported by CBM in this endeavor. To make self advocacy a sustainable movement in India, Parivaar planned and formed team of Master trainers to conduct training of trainers in different states of India. That enabled some states to have their own master trainers who could conduct Mentor training for community volunteers and subsequent Self advocacy programs for persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities. In the process we learned a lot and the experience helped us to bring out this manual. Now Self advocates are here to create their own identity.

Parivaar has initiated many self-advocacy program. But that's not even a fraction of requirement that exists for such initiatives to cover all districts, talukas and circles in the country. Now with the participation of National Institutes (NIEPMD & NIEPID) in Self Advocacy programs the effort is likely to get a flip to spread it in the rural communities. The Self Advocates' Forum of India (Safi) are equal partners in our efforts to bring out this revised hand book.

Self advocacy has to be a movement resulting in the attitudinal change; both in the society and in the mind of Self advocates & their families. And Parivaar is committed to achieve it with small, sure and effective steps. This handbook is a step towards that goal.

FROM THE AUTHORS

Much has been accomplished in the field of self-advocacy in the past 10 years! Various programs for Master Trainers as well as for Mentors have been conducted to set up an institutionalized arrangement for training mentors, who in turn conduct Self Advocacy programs. The Handbook for Mentors published over 8 years back acted as the curricula and a guide during these training workshops. It indeed served a useful purpose.

The idea for revising the handbook was mooted when it was realized that a great deal of learning had taken place during the phase post the publishing of the first handbook. It was important to share these learnings, with practicing mentors, acquired through intense exchange of thoughts and practical innovative ideas with Self advocates during the self-advocacy programs. Considerable brainstorming also took place during Training of Trainer (TOT) programs and also in Strategy workshops conducted prior to TOT programs.

Though all training programs were conducted with the original module as a base, the Mentors as well as Master Trainers had the flexibility to devise new activities based on the needs of their groups. The initial module has been retained in the second edition with few changes. Additional annexures (shared by mentors and Master Trainers from various states) have been added to the original module.

Though the activities may have changed due to a variety of needs identified across various groups of self-advocates, few changes have been made in the introductory part. This is because, despite the numbers of years and training programs after the first edition, it was recognized that the basic philosophy or principles which this handbook still continue to be valid for all groups of selfadvocates.

The second edition of this handbook is our sincere effort to add value from the experience gained by our mentors and Master Trainers, ably supported from time to time by their groups of selfadvocates.

RATIONALE

In recent times in India, support for persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities has moved dramatically toward self-actualization of the person himself. It is slowly moving away from the conventional practice of parental support. Self-advocates in India are now gradually getting in the forefront of this movement and have partnered with PARIVAAR on a number of initiatives to continue this momentum and expand its impact on individuals and on the service/ support system as a whole.

For many persons with intellectual and developmental disabilities choice is still an unfamiliar word. During the past five years, PARIVAAR has made dedicated effort to overcome generic lack of awareness that existed in parents and professionals regarding the decision-making abilities of adults with IDDs. That is indeed a great achievement in the right direction! Now the parents, professionals as well as self-advocates are gradually recognizing that before learning to step out into society, individuals must understand and know how to make choices for themselves.

Through this training, we want to make sure PwIDDS who live in urban as well as in rural areas become aware that they have the right to decide for themselves and express their wishes. Besides they should learn to live their lives on their own terms. We want them to understand that they can choose on their own or with support from family and friends and also can have a say on when, where and by whom they wish to be supported. The revised edition of handbook emphasizes on this necessity and would enable both mentor and PwIDDs to move towards this goal.

We wish all the mentors a very self-satisfying role in empowering the PwIDDs. May the God be on your side, always.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR- NIEPMD

The Constitution of India ensures the rights of every individual to live with equality, justice, freedom and dignity. India has signed and ratified the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Person with Disabilities (UNCRPD) to provide a right based dignified life to persons with disabilities. To implement the guidelines of UNCRPD, Indian Parliament has enacted the Rights of Person with Disabilities Act, 2016. To ensure the implementation of different provisions of RPWD Act 2016, Government of India is running several schemes and programmes in coordination with Government and Non-Government agencies.

Towards smooth coordination and implementing of different activities for persons with disabilities, currently 08 National Institutes and 16 Composite Regional Centers (CRCs) are function. These Institutes are mainly involved in Human Resource Development, Research, Development of educational & vocational curriculum, providing different rehabilitation services, ensuring community participation, development and distribution of aids and appliances, participating in planning and implementation of Government schemes and appliances, participating in planning and implementation of Government schemes and collecting appropriate data etc.

All the National Institutes and Composite Regional Centers (CRCs) are providing training to Self-Help Organizations and individuals working in the field of disability rehabilitation to ensure the effective coordination of rehabilitation process.

This "Handbook for the Mentors on Self-Advocacy having Intellectual Disablities and Developmental Disabilities" will become a milestone for self-advocates and various stakeholders. These collaborative effort of PARIVAR, NIEPMD, Chennai and NIEPID, Secunderabad for mentors of the Self-Advocates would play a pivotal role towards mainstreaming of person with disabilities in order to create a right based inclusive society. This handbook will also provide a positive guidance to the rehabilitation professionals.

I thank to all the publishing committee members and congratulate for the success of this book.

CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

Hello and welcome to the world of Mentoring!

It is really heartening that you have now decided to be my Mentor. Whether you are a Self Advocate yourself, a family member OR a Professional, this Handbook will be your guide on how to be an effective Mentor!

Self-Advocate consultants/mentors bring with them an incredible wealth of life experiences, which prepare them for this role. The purpose of the training is to supplement people's experience with a curriculum covering both practical topics relating to presentation skills as well as system-related topics like person-centered planning. This training will be supplemented by ongoing support and supervision.

Happy Mentoring......

HANDBOOK

The purpose of this Handbook is to provide formal training to self-advocates, parents and professionals who wish to become mentors. Mentor trainees will learn through the adult education model, which builds on the strength, capacity and experience of the learners.

The design of this Handbook is primarily intended as a self-teaching resource that gives people the flexibility to move through the content at their own pace and adapt their learning to suit their own personal needs.

This Handbook is not a one-time read-and-keep-aside manual. It is something which you will need to read little by little, digest the matter, re-read if required and apply in your day to day activities. This Handbook is also not meant to be restricted to just the few days of the training program, or only for preparation of the training program — rather, it is like any holy text, which will serve as a guide for all of us to live our lives in a more participatory manner; to imbibe participation, shared-decision-making and the resultant self-advocacy as an inevitable life-process similar to breathing.

This Handbook contains the basic information that you will require to start your journey as a Mentor for Self Advocates with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities. As we all know, learning is life-long; as your experiences increase, you will be able to learn many more things and grow as a Mentor.

This Handbook has a combination of theoretical inputs, exercises and activities which will enable you to get a comprehensive understanding on the subject. Make sure to complete the exercises, activities and self assessments given in a section immediately after you read the section. This will strengthen the knowledge gained in that section and facilitate development of appropriate behaviours and attitudes for its application.

This Handbook can also be used with specific groups such as youth with disabilities, women with disabilities or parent groups.

The learning principles that have been built into the manual involve consistency and repetition to reinforce learning through each step and maximize understanding. This can be accentuated or reduced to suit the particular needs of the participants.

The learning process of mentoring is personal and experiential, targeting issues of immediate relevance to the user(s). Self assessment exercises and worksheets have been included to give the user the opportunity to focus on the sections of the manual most relevant and useful for them.

There are 6 steps followed in this Handbook which will help you to learn about self-advocacy and the processes of Self-advocacy and Mentoring. You can also find some useful support skills that might help you as a Mentor of self-advocacy along the way.

CHAPTER II

SELF ADVOCACY

OBJECTIVES:

After reading this Chapter, you will be able to:

- 1. Explain the concepts of "Powerlessness", "Empowerment" and "Self Advocacy".
- 2. Develop a positive attitude towards Self Advocacy.
- 3. Utilize the basic skills required for Self Advocacy in your day to day activities.

You are now getting trained to mentor Self Advocates with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities. Therefore, let us understand the concept of "Self Advocacy". But yes! Before you get to know what is Self Advocacy, it is essential to understand two other concepts – that of 'Powerlessness' and 'Empowerment'.

POWERLESSNESS: Generally people with disabilities have so internalized the general negative attitudes towards them, because of their disabilities, that they cannot believe that collective action can improve their lives. They have seen the problems as inherent in their medical conditions and have not been urged to join others to demand structural changes that would render the environment useful for them.

At an individual level, powerlessness can be seen as the expectation of the person that his/her own actions will be ineffective in influencing the outcome of life events.

On a larger scale, over the years, people with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities often have had little or no political and economic power and therefore, have lacked the means to gain greater control and resources in their lives . Their powerlessness may be a direct result of social isolation, unresponsive services & systems, poverty and abuse.

EMPOWERMENT: can be understood as:

"An interactive process through which people experience personal and social change, enabling them to take action to achieve influence over the organizations and institutions which affect their lives and the communities in which they live."

For empowering a person, there are some common underlying assumptions:

- a) Individuals are assumed to understand their own needs better than anyone else and therefore should have the power both to define and act upon them.
- b) All people possess strengths upon which they can build.
- c) Empowerment is a lifelong endeavor.
- d) Personal knowledge and experience are valid and useful in coping effectively.

Increasingly, empowerment is being understood as a process of change. In order for people with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities to take power, they need to gain information about themselves and their environment and be willing to identify and work with others for change.

SELF ADVOCACY: In the Indian Context, the term Self Advocacy is little known. Many people give it a negative connotation feeling it is "fighting" for one's rights. Often the word 'Advocacy' may give it an abstract legal aura.

The explanation given in this section applies to you as much as for everyone of us dear mentor, because until and unless we imbibe the skills of self advocacy in our everyday behaviors and attitudes, it will be a difficult task to impart those skills to our mentee self advocates!

What then is Self-Advocacy?

Self-advocacy is the ability to speak-up for yourself and the things that are important to you. Self-Advocacy means you are able to ask for what you need and want and tell people about your thoughts and feelings. Self-advocacy means you know your rights and responsibilities, you speakup for your rights, and you are able to make choices and decisions that affect your life.

The goal of self-advocacy is for YOU to decide what you want, then develop and carry out a plan to help you get it. It does not mean you can't get help if you need or want it, it just means that you are making the choices and you have to be responsible for the choices you make.

Self Advocacy can therefore also be understood as the outcome of the process of empowerment whereby individuals achieve increasing control of various aspects of their lives and participate in the community with dignity.

Why is Self-Advocacy important?

It is important to learn self-advocacy skills because it helps you decide what you want and what is possible for you to expect. When you have good self-advocacy skills you can have more control and make the life decisions that are best for you. Self-advocacy helps to empower you, to speakup for yourself and make decisions about your life.

People with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities in India as elsewhere often have decisions made for them and are not given the chance to speak-up about the things that are important to them or any problems they may be having. There are a number of reasons for this:

- They do not know they have the right to speak-up
- They do not know the correct way to speak-up
- They do not know the correct person to speak to about the problem
- They are not confident enough to speak-up
- They do not know there is help available

This Handbook has been designed to enable you to help people with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities to self-advocate;

- When a group speaks they have better chance to be heard
- Learn about other Self Advocates as everybody has different needs
- Work together for new opportunities
- Help non verbal members to put forth his/her ideas
- Break barriers of discrimination stigmas and work on equal platform with non disabled
- Develop Leadership
- To make decisions about one's own life,
- Speak-up about the things that are important to them,
- Make changes if there are problems and
- Find help when they need it.

When is Self-Advocacy useful?

- When you want to be listened to
- When you are being assessed
- When you are making a complaint
- When you are developing or reviewing a care plan

Where can you Self-Advocate?

There are many places that you might want to speak-up for yourself or ask for what you want such as:

- At home
- At work
- At school
- At the hospital
- At the doctor
- At the shops
- On the bus

And many more places. If you are not happy with the way something is done then it is up to you to help change it. Nobody else knows how you feel or what you think- YOU need to tell people if you are not happy or you want something to change. (Refer annexure for more details)

How do you Self-Advocate?

- You need to decide what you want to speak-up about
- You need to plan how you are going to speak-up
- You need to speak-up for yourself
- You need the freedom to be able to make basic choices about your life.
- You need to be given the authority to be the expert on your life; you are the one who has to live your life so you should be able to make decisions which affect you.
- You need to have support to make and achieve your goals, the final decision should be yours but it is good to have other people to help you.
- You need to be responsible for your decisions. You need to try to make the best choices and fix those that did not work.
- You need to believe you are able to do the things in your life that are not working and work towards the things that are important to you.

Who is a Self-Advocate?

- Someone who says what they think and feel
- Someone who speaks-up for things they believe in
- Someone who knows and understands their rights and responsibilities
- Someone who takes responsibility for their own life
- · Someone who makes decisions that affect their life
- Someone who helps to improve their life
- Someone who tries to change the way things are done

ACTIVITY 2.1:

Interview a few adults with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities in your area. Find out from them what they feel about themselves, help they receive from their families and Society, what they desire to feel good about themselves, what are their problems, are they able to address/speak about their problems, if yes - to whom, if no then what are their barriers in expressing their problems. Discuss these findings in your group of Mentors.

ACTIVITY 2.2:

Identify success stories of empowerment among different populations (eg. Women, Senior Citizens etc.) to get an overall understanding of the concept of Self Advocacy.

Let us also see what Self Advocacy IS NOT:

- Self Advocacy is NOT just self help!
- Self Advocacy is NOT just self esteem!
- Self Advocacy is NOT just self concept!
- Self Advocacy is NOT just self image!
- Self Advocacy is NOT just self determination!

Self Advocacy is ALL of this and MUCH MORE..... (refer table 2.1)

EXERCISE 2.1:

From the table 2.1, make a personal self assessment of skills you possess. Remember, before we can help someone develop these skills, it is important to develop them in ourselves. No human being is perfect. Start practicing these skills on your own selves in your own day to day environment for better mentoring results. ©

SELF ASSESSMENT 2.2

Divide yourselves into small sub-groups of two/three members. Discuss the following questions amongst yourselves.

- 1. Discuss and explain to each other your understanding of the concepts mentioned in table 2.2
- 2. Arrive at a shared understanding of the concepts mentioned in table 2.2 with relevance to your own lives
- 3. Discuss the benefits of these concepts in your own lives.
- 4. Arrive at a shared understanding of the concepts mentioned in table 2.2 with relevance to persons with I&DD
- 5. Do you think these concepts stated in tables 2.1 and 2.2 are encouraged by adults in persons with I&DD?
- 6. Do you think these concepts stated in tables 2.1 and 2.2 should be encouraged by parents and care-givers in persons with I&DD?
- 7. If yes, discuss why?
- 8. Discuss the challenges you as a trainer would face in the process of training adults with I&DD in the skills stated in table 2.2
- 9. Do you think it is important to first develop and practice these skills in our selves before we can train persons with I&DD in the same? Explain why do you think so?

After your small group discussions are over, share the main highlights of these discussions with all others through presentations.

This exercise should enable all participants of the group to come to a common platform about all concepts stated in Tables 2.1 and 2.2. It is the clear understanding of these concepts that will enable the mentor to take up the training of self advocacy in its true sense.

Hence, please ensure each one of you have got clarity on all concepts stated in tables 2.1 and 2.2. I am sure you will help each other understand the concepts.

The next step after understanding these concepts is to PRACTICE them on ourselves in our day-to-day lives. Let us, as a mentor, be a living example of self-awareness, empathy, effective communication, decision-making, critical thinking, creative thinking, problem solving and interpersonal relationships!

CHAPTER III

MENTORING

OBJECTIVES:

After reading this Chapter, you will be able to:

- 1. Explain the concept of "Mentoring".
- 2. Develop a positive attitude towards Mentoring.
- 3. Utilize the basic skills required for Mentoring in your day to day activities.

A Mentor is a supportive individual who robuntarily accepts the personal and professional responsibilities to guide the self advocate, using own knowledge, patience and communication skills to enable the SQ's to move on to higher levels of functioning in their lives on day to day basis.

Please remember, any individual, before being a mentor, needs to thoroughly practice and imbibe all skills stated in Chapter 2 and start working towards being a self-advocate ourselves, in our own lives!

Once we have started practicing all the skills required to be developed in self-advocates, ONLY THEN are we ready to take up any training for self-advocates! A mentor, who starts training selfadvocates without first practicing the skills of self-advocacy himself/herself, will only end up taking mere activities with the I&DD adults!

In order that the persons with IDD develop these skills from the training program, the mentor must be a living example of all self-advocacy skills first!

LET US GET THIS VERY CLEAR......

- -- MENTORING IS NOT TEACHING!
- -- MENTORING IS NOT TELLING THEM WHAT TO DO!
- -- MENTORING IS NOT TELLIING THEM HOW TO DO!
- --MENTORING IS NOT DOING THINGS FOR THEM!
- -- MENTORING IS NOT ABOUT PROVIDING FOR THEM!
- -- MENTORING IS NOT ABOUT SYMPATHY!

MENTORING is more of an attitudinal change

It is believing that the Self Advocate has an inherent desire AND ability to progress

It is trusting that the Self Advocate knows what to do and how to do whatever he wishes to do ...

It is providing unconditional support in failures and unending opportunities to succeed

It is unearthing the latent potentials within the Self Advocate

What then will be your role as Mentor?

- 1. To aid the Self Advocate in making life decisions or assists in trouble shooting personal, social, or institutional barriers.
- 2. To introduce the Self Advocate to new opportunities and relationships that provide them extended support.
- 3. To provide guidance by guarding the Self Advocate from damaging experiences, and intervening in situations that the mentee may have difficulty handling.
- 4. To provide advice and wisdom to the Self Advocate in a continual relationship, that can last a lifetime.
- 5. To enhance the Self Advocates' knowledge and understanding of the opportunities made available to them through the community.
- 6. To guide in appropriate handling of specific situations, problems, or settings.
- 7. To offer suggestions for problem solving, decision-making and reaching short-and long-term goals and letting the Self Advocate take the final decision.
- 8. To provide counseling and explain how personal concerns can hinder education, self esteem and postpone a promising future.
- 9. Due to the trust and emotional attachment that often develops between mentor and the Self Advocate, anxieties, fears and conflicts can be openly discussed and ultimately overcome with the mentor's guidance.
- 10. To support and to inspire Self Advocates to realize the infinite possibilities life holds, and to know their own potential in fulfilling such aspirations

ACTIVITY 3.1: Meet a few Adults with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities. Speak to them about the people who help them. Ask them which people they trust to get help? Why do they go to them only and not to others? Discuss in your group.

EXERCISE 3.1: Remember and list down people who have been your mentors. How did they help you? What was it in them and what they did that made you feel empowered? Discuss the findings in your group.

SELF ASSESSMENT 3.1
In your own words answer these questions. Your answers do not need to be perfect; this is just to help you to understand what mentoring is.
What is mentoring?
Why is mentoring important?
How is mentoring different from teaching? Write any three differences.
List any three roles of a mentor:
List 3 things which you need to bear in mind before mentoring:

2Understanding the many ways people communicate Not everyone can speak but everyone can communicate. What are some ways people communicate?

- Sign Language
- Hearing Aid
- Body Language
- Eye Movement
- Alphabet Board Be sensitive to the many ways people express "no".

- How is friendship important to our lives?
- What do we like to do with friends?
- · How do we stay in touch with friends?
- How do we get the support needed to maintain friendships?

4_{Community}

Inclusion

- Why is it important to be in a community
- How do you choose a community in which to live?
- · What is important for you to have in your community
- What is the best way to choose a community in which to live?

WHAT DOES IT TAKE TO BE A GOOD MENTOR?

1 Listening skills

- Why is listening important? Talk about why listening is important.
- How do we listen? Ask the mentors about different ways to listen. Write them down on newsprint.
- Practice by making sure no one interrupts the person speaking, and encourage people in the group to think of questions to ask afterwards.

6Establishing boundaries

- What kind of boundaries do we need to establish?
- Staying within the responsibilities of the mentor role
- Confidentiality
- Respect
- Be aware that what the person wants and what you want for the person may not be the same
- Encourage the person to speak for him or herself, but don't speak on their behalf unless they ask you to.

5Gaining trust

- What are some ways to gain a person's trust?
- Why is trust so important?
- Is it necessary for trust to go both ways?
- List down some ways to gain a person's trust?
- Practice it in your behavior.
- Discuss the difficulties and sort them out

Together Each of us Achieve More (TEAM)

Teamwork is very important in your work as a mentor.

- 1. You are teamed with the individual/s you are mentoring. Together you talk about what the individual wants to do. You listen closely to what they say. You offer guidance and support in helping the individual make choices.
- 2. You are teamed with the other mentors in your group. You meet regularly with the other mentors to discuss your progress, issues that have come up, and your concerns if you have
- 3. You are teamed with your Team Leaders. They are your support and your supervisor. Whatever issues you come across in your mentoring, you should discuss with your Team Leader.

Remember: You are all bound by the requirement for confidentiality. You cannot discuss with anyone else information about the person you are mentoring.

Utilize your team to maximum advantage for the cause. Get to know what the strengths of your team members are and connect through them to all possible resources that will be helpful to your team of self advocates.

Expectations of team members:

- 'Listen to each mentor as they speak at team meetings.
- ' Understand the value and importance of listening.
- 'Respect everyone's opinions (even if you don't agree).

WORKSHEET 3.2

Make a list of your team members (including professionals, parents and self advocates). Identify their backgrounds and strengths. Illustrate how their background and strength can be helpful to your group of self advocates.

TEAM MEMBER	STRENGTHS	HOW THIS STRENGTH CAN BE UTILIZED FOR
		THE BENEFIT OF THE GROUP

WORKSHEET 3.3

In addition to the skills mentioned in Worksheet 3.1, make a list of skills with explanations wherever required on the skills which you feel are essential as a mentor.

Discuss your list in a small group and make a compiled list.

Discuss this compiled list with your supervisor and the entire group of mentor trainees. Put up a final list of skills required by the mentors on a chart paper and display it for reference at all times.

WORKSHEET 3.4

Referring to Worksheet no 3.1, 3.2 and 3.3, assess yourself and list down the mentoring skills present in yourself in the columns given. In the last column, state what kind of help you would require and from whom in order to develop that particular skill in yourself.

SKILLS	HOW CAN I DEVELOP THESE SKILLS?
SKILLS IN WHICH I NEED HELP
SKILLS IN WHICH I AM SATISFACTORY
SKILLS IN WHICH I AM GOOD

ACTIVITY 3.2:

Survey your local region. Identify the Government, Semi-Government, Private, NGO agencies that can be of help to the Self Advocates' group. Type out a detailed list of addresses, contact persons with phone numbers, procedure for taking help from that agency and any other relevant details. Photocopy and distribute copies to all mentor trainees for ready reference in future.

CHAPTER IV

THE MENTORING PROGRAM

OBJECTIVES:

After reading this Chapter, you will be able to:

- 1. State the basic requirements for formulating a training program for mentee Self Advocates.
- 2. Develop a positive attitude towards training of Self Advocates.
- 3. Utilize the basic skills required for training self advocates in your day to day activities.

So, friends, now that we have got a fair understanding of what self advocacy skills are required by adults with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities from your region as also skills required by mentors for enabling these self advocates, let us now move on to get a specific in-depth understanding of mentoring in a SAFI program.

PREPARATION FOR TRAINING

Before you begin any training program for Self Advocates,

- Ensure that you have thoroughly understood all the concepts regarding self advocacy and mentoring.
- Spend some time on your own self development.
- Ensure that you practice all the skills required for self advocacy yourself before you can impart them to your mentees.
- Practice the skills for self advocates as well as those required by mentors as stated by your group in the various worksheets from this Handbook (including confidentiality).
- Get your Supervisor and other mentor trainees to help you in this process.
- Involve all stakeholders including the self advocates in your preparation ("nothing for us without us").
- Involve all organizations working in the field of Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities from your region.
- Ensure that you are prepared with necessary information and have a plan ready before you conduct a meeting of the stakeholders.

PROGRAM PLANNING:

As you are aware, in India, needs and requirements of all people vary after every few kilometers. Hence, a standard program for training our Self Advocates is not recommended.

At the beginning, prioritize and select skills compiled from worksheet 2.1 by your mentor trainee group for training purposes. These are the skills that you will base your training program on.

General guidelines for planning an effective training module:

Training can be conducted in large group, small groups or on a one-to-one basis. Remember, learning and development is always on-going. Our training programs for self advocates also therefore need to be drawn over a period of time, giving enough time to the self advocates for practice of skills and to the mentor to evaluate his/her progress. Use resources from the community in your training. Plan a gradual transition of skills from the training sessions onto community set-ups. Discuss the plan with your Supervisor before finalization. The training module should have a good proportion of structure as well as an in-built flexibility to modify and adapt as per requirement. Too much structure becomes boring. Alternate quiet sessions with active ones to keep up the momentum. Include an activity based format with interactive sessions for real-time development of self advocacy skills.

Remember to specify the following for an effective program plan:

- 1. Your program objectives: Talk to your mentee self advocates. Take their help in planning objectives for them. Objectives can be planned for individuals, and groups. The program schedule and activities can then be arranged accordingly.
- 2. Number of mentee self advocates to be included in a project: As mentioned earlier, ensure that you contact and invite ALL Organizations working in the field of Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities from your region to participate in the self advocacy group. Depending on the strength of the Organizations that are willing to participate, decide a certain number of self advocates from each organization, so as to provide equal opportunity to all participating organizations. Some adults may be working independently and may not be associated with any organization. It would be a good idea to spread the word and include as many adults from diverse groups even if they are not associated with any organization.
- 3. Eligibility criteria: Any adult with Intellectual & Developmental Disabilities this will be the ONLY criteria for participation in the Self Advocacy group there will be no restrictions on participation based on any other criteria
- 4. Time required: Decide a time in consultation with the various participating members for smooth conduct.
- 5. Materials required: Will be based on your objectives; preferably from the environment that the mentees come from.
- 6. Activity/ies to achieve your objectives: Plan a mix of indoor as well as outdoor activities in and around the local communities to facilitate transfer of learning.
- 7. Location for training: may be decided in consultation with the participating organizations.
- 8. Resources required: financial, human, community persons required.
- 9. Parameters (criteria) and Strategies for evaluation: Should be in tune with your training objectives.

Since the mentee self advocates will be from various organizations, the initial sessions should include a lot of group activities where they get a chance to interact with each other.

The following procedure can be followed:

- 1. Organize a meeting of parent, professional as well as SA representatives from all Organizations in your region.
- 2. Inform them about the entire program.
- 3. In consultation with all the participating Organizations, decide a time plan, duration, days & dates and venue for conduct of the Self Advocates' training.
- 4. Depending on the total number of participating organizations/members, and in order to include a maximum of 30 self advocates per group, decide on a number of mentee self advocates to be deputed from each organization.
- 5. Make it clear that the same mentees should compulsorily attend ALL sessions from the first to the last one.
- 6. Draw out a list of responsibilities each participating organization is ready to undertake during the entire project.
- 7. The first day of training can be more for rapport building and assessment.
- 8. Based on this assessment and the list of skills drawn in Worksheet 2.1, formulate an activity based training module (preferably full day sessions once a week for a duration of minimum 10 weeks).
- 9. Coordinate with other mentors for preparation and conduct of sessions.
- 10. Coordinate with the participating Organizations for follow-up of skills covered in day to day activities during the week.
- 11. Prepare formats/parameters for feedback and take feedback from the mentee self advocates regarding actual practice of the skills during the week.
- 12. On the day of the program, come prepared at the venue at least an hour before the start of training.
- 13. Ensure that ALL mentee self advocates are given an equal opportunity to participate irrespective of their abilities or limitations.
- 14. Remember to be aware at all times and include opportunities for incidental learning (opportunities which have not been planned and that arise at the time of training).
- 15. Plan and conduct your training module in such a way that the role of the mentor will gradually be reduced towards the end of the entire program. This will empower the mentee self advocates to take decisions by themselves relying on members within their group, thereby preparing them for post-training activities.
- 16. Also ensure that during the training the mentee self advocates develop the skills in public speaking/addressing public since awareness creation would be one of the major activities of the self advocates' group.

ELECTION AND STARTING OF A SELF ADVOCATES' GROUP:

By the last two training sessions all the trainees would have got to know each other well. Some time in these two sessions may be reserved for nomination of candidates for posts of Office bearers, the voting for which will take place through secret ballot.

Explain to all mentees the roles and responsibilities of each of the office bearers and get them to nominate themselves or others based on their strengths and eligibility for the respective post. Help them to prepare their campaign speech to be delivered on the day of the election.

Give them a pre-experience of casting their vote through secret ballot focusing on the basic skills (selecting/stamping on just ONE option & maintaining confidentiality) before the actual elections. Count the ballot papers immediately after the elections and declare the Office bearers at the Valedictory.

POST TRAINING

Your role in their decision making would have already reduced to a great extent by now. Remember mentors, once the training is over, the entire mantle of responsibilities shifts to the now "Self Advocates". Recognize that having undergone the intensive 10 weeks' training, their innate abilities to know what they want and to decide for themselves have definitely undergone a sea of change.

Believe in their potentials and give them that final "push" to be on their own; You only playing the role of a supporting actor in the entire dram that will unfold and be with them in case of any crises.

As mentors, the three main responsibilities you will continue to undertake even after establishment of the group are:

- 1. Maintaining confidentiality regarding all matters discussed by the self advocates in their group.
- 2. Maintaining regular contacts with parents for follow-up.
- 3. Maintaining liaison with various employment agencies for establishment of future self-help groups formulated from these self advocates' groups.

On the last day of the training program, organize a meeting of all participating organizations to review the training and plan for the future.

The Self Advocates will conduct the following activities assisted by the mentors and in collaboration with the participating Organizations:

- 1. Decide days, dates, time and venues for monthly meetings.
- 2. Assign responsibilities amongst Office bearers and members of the Self Advocates' group for various tasks in conduct of the monthly meetings.
- 3. Decide the agenda for the first meeting.
- 4. Ensure that every meeting has one capsule of agenda items decided by the self advocates themselves and one capsule conducted by the mentors for advancement of their self advocacy skills.
- 5. The theme for the advanced training in self advocacy should also essentially be decided by the self advocates themselves depending on the problems they face and their felt needs in their day to day lives.
- 6. Need based Workshops, visits of the self advocates to local organizations and visits to the group by local activists can also be planned during these monthly meetings.

- 7. The self advocates' group members also start working on addressing public at various social gatherings in educational institutions, mahila mandals and other such organizations to create awareness about their abilities and rights.
- 8. Arrange for meeting of Self Advocates from other regions to facilitate sharing of information.
- Refresher courses may be organized for yourselves as well as for the Self Advocates after some ground experience for structured training in knowledge and skills which would be required.

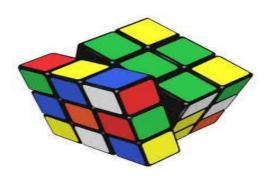

You see things that are and you say, "why?"

I dream of things that never were and I say, "why not?"

CHAPTER V

CONCLUDING REMARKS

The Mentors manual contains four chapters with resources for the modules and Self directed assessment tasks. The module must be taught in sequence, as participants will acquire knowledge on which to build the assessment tasks. We have attached sample training schedule for your reference and adaptation.. We have also included in the annexure the format for planning monthly (weekly-whatever suits the group) meetings.

Trainers are encouraged to use their own as well as their participants' experiences to support learning points. We have also recommended that the trainers use other reading and teaching materials and internet for accessing training resources.

This module focuses on how to be an effective mentor and the use of resources can support learning. Key aspects of life skills needed for advocacy are considered, included in the manual and mentors are at liberty to review the material and to develop new skills or approaches in playing their role as Mentors..

St. Thomas Aquinas has very rightly put it "A thing which is always subjected to the direction of another is somewhat of a dead thing." We can not have a better direction for the role that we are expected to play as a MENTOR!

LET US CELEBRATE!

Protocol for the Conduct of Monthly Meeting:

Steps of the business meeting:

MEMBERS SIGN ATTENDANCE REGISTER

I. Call to order.

The President of the chapter calls the meeting to order.

Many chapters use a wooden gavel (a ceremonial hammer) to tap on the table and get everyone's attention.

II. Roll call or Introductions.

In this portion of the meeting, each member says his or her own name, or it is read aloud.

III. The Minutes

The secretary reads the minutes of the last meeting. The president asks for a motion to accept the minutes as read. The president leads the vote to accept the minutes. The members vote.

IV. The Treasurer's Report

The Treasurer reads the financial report.

V. Old Business

The President discussed the old business. These are things that have been talked about in the last Meeting, but they are not completed. Sometimes he/she will ask for committee reports at this time.

VI. New Business

The President leads a discussion of new business. These are ideas that have not been talked about before. When Decisions need to be made, the members of SAFI vote.

- 1. The President calls for a motion.
- 2. Someone makes a motion.

The method for grouping which was initiated last week is made a little more complex: Trainers and Volunteers stand in five places holding a bead of one colour each. Members are required to look at the bead in their own hands, and collect by themselves around the Volunteer/Trainer who is holding the same coloured bead. After the groups are formed, each group will be given three news papers, a pair of scissors, one cello-tape and few pins. Each group has to identify one "KING" amongst their team members and prepare a set of clothes for their KING using the material provided. After 30 minutes, each king will walk the ramp to a lot of cheer from all the groups.
